

WE ARE WINNING THE WAR AGAINST CANCER!

Discover how clinical trials could help you win your fight.

Today, the prognosis for cancer patients is better than ever, and it's only going to improve. In fact, thanks to new breakthroughs and revolutionary new treatments, the war on cancer is being won. There is more reason for hope than ever before, and clinical research trials are a big reason why.

Come to this workshop presented by experienced oncologist and Rutgers-RWJ professor James C. Salwitz, MD to learn about clinical trials, how they work, and how they can restore hope even when all seems hopeless.

Discover what to discuss with you or your loved one's cancer-care team, what determines eligibility, what options exist, and how you can contribute to improving cancer care while accessing tomorrow's most promising treatments.
